Logan Brown is a British trans rights activist, blogger, and residential children's support worker. The ex-partner of non-binary drag performer Bailey J Mills, he is best known in the U.K. for having a child after having transitioned as a transgender man. Brown was featured on the cover of Glamour UK in 2023, whilst in his final trimester of pregnancy. The cover was for the magazine's Pride issue, and featured Brown in a body-painted suit, which referenced Demi Moore's famous 1992 cover photo for Vanity Fair, where Moore posed nude while pregnant.

Brown came out at the age of 13 and again as a transgender man at 21 to a supportive family. In February 2024, he told the Manchester Evening News "I didn't realise the things I used to do, like bind my chest down, I was doing for a reason." Brown started hormone therapy. At 22 Brown had chest surgery to remove his breast tissue. He described the process as "just life-changing." "It was everything I had always wanted."

A residential children's support worker, Brown had initially blogged about his pregnancy on his blog "Up the Duff Man." It was unexpected and one that had happened with his partner, non-binary drag performer Bailey J Mills, when Brown had stopped taking hormones for health reasons. Brown has described how the pregnancy brought back feelings of body dysmorphia. He told Glamour "I took a pregnancy test and it was positive. It was like my whole world just stopped. That everything, all my manlihood that I've worked hard for, for so long, just completely felt like it was erased." The feeling was repeated during the birth; Brown, who has ADHD, said that if he were to become pregnant again he would want to have an elective caesarean. Speaking about his pregnancy, Brown stated: "Especially in the queer community, but also from cisgender straight people that were messaging me, going, 'I never even thought about this.' It's not my job to educate people, but because I'm so passionate about existing and trans people, I feel like I need to get my story out there. And it's a positive story."

He gave birth to a daughter in 2024. Since then, Brown has modelled in cosmetics adverts for BPerfect Cosmetics. Brown also wrote the children's book In My Daddy's Belly for his daughter and an autobiography. According to PinkNews, the book has been the subject of transphobic attacks.

Brown won an award march 2025 at The Gaydio awards, for influencer of the year.

James Clayton Dobson Jr.

(April 21, 1936 – August 21, 2025) was an American evangelical Christian author, psychologist and founder of Focus on the Family (FotF), which he led from 1977 until 2010. In the 1980s, he was ranked as one of the most influential spokesmen for conservative social positions in American public life. Although never an ordained minister, he was called "the nation's most influential evangelical leader" by The New York Times while Slate portrayed him as being a successor to evangelical leaders Jerry Falwell and Pat Robertson.

As part of his former role in the organization he produced the daily radio program Focus on the Family, which the organization has said was broadcast in more than a dozen languages and on over 7,000 stations worldwide, and reportedly heard daily by more than 220 million people in 164 countries. Focus on the Family was also carried by about 60 U.S. television stations daily. In 2010, he launched the radio broadcast Family Talk with Dr. James Dobson.

Dobson advocated for "family values"—the instruction of children in heterosexuality and traditional gender roles, which he believed are mandated by the Bible. The goal of this was to promote heterosexual marriage, which he viewed as a cornerstone of civilization that was to be protected from his perceived dangers of feminism and the LGBT rights movement. Dobson sought to equip his audience to fight in the American culture war, which he called the "Civil War of Values".

His writing career began as an assistant to Paul Popenoe. After Dobson's rise to prominence through promoting corporal punishment of disobedient children in the 1970s, he became a founder of purity culture in the 1990s. He promoted his ideas via his various Focus on the Family affiliated organizations, the Family Research Council which he founded in 1981, Family Policy Alliance which he founded in 2004, the Dr. James Dobson Family Institute which he founded in 2010, and a network of US state-based lobbying organizations called Family Policy Councils.

The Novgorod Case involved Antonina Martynova (formerly Fyodorova, née Stepanova). She was charged with attempted murder while trying to murder her then 2-year-old daughter, Alisa. The sole witness was an 11-year-old boy.

Antonina was prosecuted under Articles 30.3 ("Preparations for a Crime, and Attempted Crimes") and 105.2 ("Murder") of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation (CC-RF). (CC-RF henceforth; these links and other Code(s) links below are for the English translation(s) of the latest versions of the Code(s), those currently in force in Russia).

The case sparked extensive public debate in Russian media, online communities, and blogs. Discussions began in April 2007 with a post on the (Russian-language) blog of Antonina's husband (her domestic partner at the time), Kirill Martynov (LiveJournal user "hvil").

The Let's-Read-and-Find-Out Science Books series, originally published by Crowell, now HarperCollins, is an American children's book series designed to educate preschoolers and young elementary school students about basic science concepts.

Many Let's Read and Find Out titles have either been reillustrated (sometimes more than once) or reissued under different titles. Some of these titles may be duplicates because of the renaming.

Since the 1990s, the series has been divided into two levels. Stage 1 books "explain simple and easily observable science concepts for preschool- and kindergarten-age children." Subjects covered in Stage 1 titles include the human body, plants, animals and "the world around us."

Stage 2 books "explore more challenging concepts for children in the primary grades and include hands-on activities that children can do themselves." Subjects covered in the Stage 2 titles including the human body, plants, animals, dinosaurs, space, weather and the seasons, our earth and "the world around us."
