Talal Maddah (5 August 1940 – 11 August 2000; Arabic: تالال مده) was a Saudi Arabian musician and composer . He was named Maddah after his mother's family and was commonly nicknamed as "The Earth's Voice" (Arabic: صوت الأرض). He had a substantial influence over 20th century-Arabian culture.

Arabic diacritics

The Arabic script has numerous diacritics, which include consonant pointing known as iʔjʔm (إِيجَم, IPA: [iʔdʔæʔm]), and supplementary diacritics known as tashkʔl (تَشَكِّل, IPA: [tʔæʔkiʔl]). The latter include the vowel marks termed ʔarakʔt (أَرَاكُت, IPA: [ʔæʔækæʔtʔ]; sg. أَرَاكُ, IPA: [ʔæʔækæ]).

The Arabic script is a modified abjad, where all letters are consonants, leaving it up to the reader to fill in the vowel sounds. Short consonants and long vowels are represented by letters, but short vowels and consonant length are not generally indicated in writing. Tashkʔl is optional to represent missing vowels and consonant length. Modern Arabic is always written with the iʔjʔm—consonant pointing—but only religious texts, children's books and works for learners are written with the full tashkʔl—vowel guides and consonant length. It is, however, not uncommon for authors to add diacritics to a word or letter when the grammatical case or the meaning is deemed otherwise ambiguous. In addition, classical works and historical documents rendered to the general public are often rendered with the full tashkʔl, to compensate for the gap in understanding resulting from stylistic changes over the centuries.

Moreover, tashkʔl can change the meaning of the entire word, for example, the words: (دين), meaning (religion), and (دين), meaning (debt). Even though they have the same letters, their meanings are different because of the tashkʔl. In sentences without tashkʔl, readers understand the meaning of the word by simply using context.

is elided after a preceding vowel. Alif is always the carrier. The alif maddah is a double alif, expressing both a glottal stop and a long vowel. Essentially Aleph (or alef or alif, transliterated ʾ) is the first letter of the Semitic abjads, including Phoenician ʾlph ʾ, Hebrew ʾlph ʾ, Aramaic ʾlph ʾ, Syriac ʾlph ʾ, Arabic ʾlph ʾ, and North Arabian ʾ. It also appears as South Arabian ʾ and Ge'ez ʾlph ʾ.

These letters are believed to have derived from an Egyptian hieroglyph depicting an ox's head to describe the initial sound of ʾalp*, the West Semitic word for ox (compare Biblical Hebrew ʾlph ʾ, "ox"). The Phoenician variant gave rise to the Greek alpha (α), being re-interpreted to express not the glottal consonant but the accompanying vowel, and hence the Latin A and Cyrillic А and possibly the Armenian letter Ա.

Phonetically, aleph originally represented the onset of a vowel at the glottis. In Semitic languages, this functions as a prosthetic weak consonant, allowing roots with only two true consonants to be conjugated in the manner of a standard three consonant Semitic root. In most Hebrew dialects as well as Syriac, the aleph is an absence of a true consonant, a glottal stop ([ʔ]), the sound found in the catch in uh-oh. In Arabic, the alif represents the glottal stop pronunciation when it is the initial letter of a word. In texts with diacritical marks, the pronunciation of an aleph as a consonant is rarely indicated by a special marking, hamza in Arabic and mappiq in Tiberian Hebrew. In later Semitic languages, aleph could sometimes function as a mater lectionis indicating the presence of a vowel elsewhere (usually long). When this practice began is the subject of some controversy, though it had become well established by the late stage of Old Aramaic (ca. 200 BCE). Aleph is often transliterated as U+02BE ʾ MODIFIER LETTER RIGHT HALF RING, based on the Greek spiritus lenis ϝ; for example, in the transliteration of the letter name itself, ʾlph.

The Big Day Out (BDO) was an annual music festival that was held in five Australian cities: Sydney, Melbourne, Gold Coast, Adelaide, and Perth, as well as Auckland, New Zealand. The festival was held during summer, typically in January of each year but was sometimes held as late as early February in some cities including Perth.

The event was conceptualised after the Violent Femmes announced a tour of Australia. Promoters Ken West and Vivian Lees sought another act as middle-level support for the band's tour. They succeeded in securing Nirvana to play the Sydney leg at the Hordern Pavilion.

The Big Day Out debuted on the 1992 Australia Day public holiday in Sydney and eventually expanded to Melbourne, Adelaide, and Perth the following year. The Gold Coast and Auckland were added to the schedule in 1994. As of 2003, it featured seven or eight stages (depending on the venue), accommodating popular contemporary rock music, electronic music, mainstream international acts, and local acts. Auckland was taken out of the tour schedule in 2013, but the festival returned to the city for its last run in 2014.

After the partnership between Ken West and Vivian Lees was dissolved in 2011, Lees sold his stake in the event to American festival promoters C3 Presents. In early June 2014, C3 attained full ownership of the Big Day Out festival and announced the cancellation of the 2015 event on 26 June 2014 with the option for the festival to return in the future left open. Despite this, the event has yet to return in subsequent years and as of 2022 there are currently no plans for any event to be held in future. Founder Ken West died in April 2022 at the age of 64.
